Unlock Your Path to a Fulfilling Career! Environmental Public Health Bursary Program for Indigenous Students

Are you an Indigenous individual seeking a career that makes a meaningful impact? The Environmental Health Foundation of Canada, in collaboration with Indigenous Services Canada, is pleased to offer a bursary program designed to support Indigenous students on their educational journey to becoming Environmental Public Health Officers (EPHOs).

Why Consider a Career as an Environmental Public Health Officer?

- In-Demand Career: Enter a career that is in high demand across Canada, particularly in First Nations communities. EPHOs do work that is exciting, rewarding, and different everyday while earning a good salary and providing essential public health services.
- Flexible Schooling Options: Whether entering directly from high school, holding a bachelor's degree in science, or currently working in a related career, there are diverse educational paths available.

What the Bursary Offers:

- Financial Support: The bursary supports attendance at any educational program accredited by the Canadian Institute of Public Health Inspectors (CIPHI) by covering tuition and some living costs.
- Renewable: This isn't a one-year opportunity! The bursary is renewable, providing sustained support throughout your academic journey.
- For All Stages: Whether you're entering school in 2024 or already attending an accredited program, the bursary is available to you.

Who is Eligible:

- Any Indigenous individual attending or applying to a CIPHI accredited program. View the list of accredited programs at ciphi.ca/certification

Important Dates:

- Application Window: Applications are due April 30th, 2024. Late applications will be considered until all spots have been filled. Apply before April 30th for the highest chance of obtaining a bursary.
